About the Quality Texas Foundation (QTF)

In 1990 the concept of a state quality award was introduced to and supported by Governor Ann Richards. Collaborative efforts between the Governor's office, the Texas Department of Commerce, and Texas businesses made it possible to create QTF.

A committee of representatives from Texas organizations created the Texas Quality Award (now called the Texas Award for Performance Excellence (TAPE). In 1991-1992, QTF delivered quality awareness seminars to 1,800 individuals from 700 organizations.

Since inception, QTF continues to promote quality and performance excellence to organizations from all sectors. In the initial launch of the QTF Award program, primary focus was on manufacturing and small business sectors; however, today the Award is open to organizations in manufacturing, service, small business, government, education, healthcare, and nonprofit sectors.

The Malcolm Baldrige National Quality Award (MBNQA) had been created in 1987 under Public Law 100-107. In its first four years (1988-1991), MBNQA had selected 17 recipients, including 3 (17%) Texas organizations, Wallace Company, Houston (1990), Marlow Industries, Dallas (1991), and Texas Instruments Defense Systems & Electronics Group, Dallas (1992).

QTF first accepted applications for the 1993 award cycle. The American Productivity & Quality Center (APQC) served as the inaugural award program administrator. Currently, QTF administers the Texas Award for Performance Excellence (TAPE) program as a separate independent non-profit corporation. The first awards were presented in 1994 by Governor Ann Richards in the Governor's mansion in Austin to Texas Eastman Division Eastman Chemical and the Texas Comptroller of Public Accounts.

Accomplishments and Distinctions

Since inception nearing our 25th year of providing services, QTF has provided systematic assessments and written feedback to 200+ Applicants for the TAPE Award and 500+ Applicants for Engagement, Commitment, and Progress level awards. QTF has trained more than 2,000 QTF Examiners in the Baldrige assessment and feedback processes. Through the 2016 MBNQA Award cycle, 20 different Texas-based organizations have been recognized as MBNQA recipients, 18% of all 106 organizations selected to receive the Award. QTF performance at producing MBNQA recipients is double the performance of the next best state program and QTF has sustained this level of market share throughout the history of the MBNQA and QTF programs.

Thank you for your engagement with QTF and for helping make possible these achievements.
